Bianca's Update -Graduating Your Family

When is a family actually ready to graduate? This isn't always an easy question to answer and we know tutors can sometimes be uncertain when a family has reached the point where they are beyond the level of our assistance and ready to take the reins themselves.

If you find yourself wondering if your family is ready to take the next step, the two attached Evaluation Tools (Self-Evaluation Check Sheet & Functional Area Descriptors) will help you identify any areas the family may still need assistance with or if they are competent performing the activities themselves.

Not all families are the same, so some areas of evaluation may not be relevant. Also, it may be that there are no longer enough family members needing help to justify ongoing assistance from three tutors. If this is the case, we can try to link them with appropriate organisations. Just remember, VoRTCS is not a homework club and there are many clubs and English courses around Brisbane to assist and support families. For information about these, or if you have any questions or concerns about graduating your family, please call me on 3010 1069 or email bianca.nisbet@svdpqld.org.au.

The recommended steps for graduating a family are also attached in a third document (Family Graduation Steps) and then monthly sessions before concluding tutoring completely.

And remember, if you know anyone who may be interested in becoming a tutor, please direct them to: <http://www.refugeetutoring.org/register-to-attend-training.php>

Need Tutor Resouces?

The VoRTCS library has tutor resources to assist refugee families of all ages and stages. To introduce you to the wealth of resources available, we'll regularly highlight items that you can borrow for use in your tutoring sessions. This month, we have a list of books with the theme of Beginnings.

A Whole New World* edited by Dorothy Court Hazel Davidson and Margaret Hounslow;

This book will help those working with newly arrived refugee students and others needing elementary language, literacy, numeracy and life skills to function effectively in Australian society.

It contains suggestions for teaching tips, activities and projects, worksheets to photocopy, charts and pictures, and ideas for making your own reading materials relevant to your family's needs.
